OVERVIEW

Cliff Histed represents companies and individuals operating in highly-regulated industries, inside and outside the United States, including in the areas of financial markets and healthcare, in criminal and regulatory proceedings, and represents clients in litigation and at trial.

Cliff is a former supervisory Assistant US Attorney, supervisory enforcement lawyer with the Commodity Futures Trading Commission, Assistant Illinois Attorney General, and special agent with a federal Inspector General's Office. He has experience investigating, prosecuting, and defending matters in the securities markets, energy, agricultural and financial futures markets, and healthcare. He has tried 27 criminal and civil cases in federal and state courts, and has handled eleven matters before the Second and Seventh Circuit Courts of Appeals.

Cliff has conducted or supervised hundreds of investigations and prosecutions, including those involving bribery, insider trading, price manipulation, wash trading, embezzlement and internal fraud, and trade secret theft. Many of these investigations involved parallel proceedings brought by federal regulatory agencies, futures exchanges, bankruptcy trustees, or private litigants. As a prosecutor, Cliff:

- Supervised the investigation and indictment of an individual in the first case to charge the disruptive trading practice known as “spoofing” as a crime.
- Prosecuted and tried the former CEO of Sentinel Management Group, Inc., a CFTC-registered Futures Commission Merchant and SEC-registered Investment Advisor, who was convicted of defrauding customers by using their funds to trade in risky investments and concealing material facts from them.

As defense counsel, in many cases Cliff has persuaded the Department of Justice, Securities and Exchange Commission, and Commodity Futures Trading Commission not to file charges against his clients.

Cliff speaks and writes frequently on the topic of futures and securities trading, and on regulation of cryptocurrencies. Notable publications that have quoted him include Bloomberg News, Chicago Lawyer, Crain's Chicago Business, Law360, Institutional Investor, Forbes, Fortune, New York Times, and Reuters.

Cliff has a very active pro bono practice and has provided legal services to the Illinois Torture Inquiry and Relief Commission since 2016. He is a member of the Criminal Justice Act Panel for the US District Court for the Northern District of Illinois which provides representation to indigent clients charged with federal criminal offenses.

PROFESSIONAL BACKGROUND

Cliff's career includes the following public and private sector organizations:

- US Attorney's Office, Northern District of Illinois (June 2006—January 2015). Deputy Chief, Securities and Commodities Fraud Section (April 2014-January 2015); Deputy Chief, Financial Crimes and Special Prosecutions Section (July 2011-April 2014)
- An American Energy company (July 2004-June 2006). Worked in both the compliance and law departments directly on the trading floor, providing regulatory advice concerning exchange-traded and over-the-counter derivatives to BP's energy commodity traders.
- Commodity Futures Trading Commission (August 2000-July 2004). Supervisory Trial Attorney June 2002-July 2004. Investigated and prosecuted civil violations of the Commodity Exchange Act and CFTC regulations, including conducting preliminary injunction hearings, taking depositions, and arguing motions in district courts across the country.
- Illinois Attorney General's Office (November 1995-August 2000). Assistant Attorney General, Financial Crime Unit. Prosecuted criminal fraud and official misconduct cases across the State of Illinois.
- Office of Inspector General, US Department of Education (August 1989-November 1995). As a Special Agent, Cliff investigated criminal fraud against federal government programs. He is an honor graduate of both the nine-week special agent course, and the three-week Inspector General Basic Training Program, at the Federal Law Enforcement Training Center.
